There is a high grade, or approach leading to the Turkey Creek bridge south of town, near George Balch's farm, which has no banisters or railing to keep horses from shying and running vehicles off same and causing loss of life or property or both. Having been detailed by the department president to inspect the Hackleman Relief Corps at Cherryvale, Kansas, it was my pleasant duty to comply; consequently, on the 10th of November the Corps met in special session with a goodly number of Hackleman Corps and also the Department Chaplain. The ritual was exemplified in a very nice manner, showing that the officers were very proficient in their work. In the evening there was a reception given at the residence of Mrs. Hulse in honor of the inspecting officer and department chaplain, which was a very enjoyable affair. At a late hour supper was served in a most elegant manner, and the evening passed pleasantly away, interspersed with music on the piano and by the mandolin club, after which the party dispersed with many regrets by the inspecting officer that all good things must come to an end. The memories of that meeting at Cherryvale will form a beautiful picture to hang on memory's wall. Your humble servant and the department chaplain were entertained at the home of the Corps' president by Mr. and Mrs. Lenthner and their interesting daughters, the younger being a teacher in the public school of Cherryvale. Altogether the inspection of the Corps was not only a duty but a joy long to be remembered.
S. E. DICKINSON, Sr. Vice Dep't. President; Acting Ass't. Inspector.

Burglary.
Thieves broke into the New Process steam laundry Tuesday night and stole a number of articles of clothing of the value of $10 or $12 that were beinglaundried. It is too bad that these sneak thieves cannot be run in or run out—of town. There are a number of worthless fellows prowling around town and as they do not work and must eat and keep warm, they must certainly steal. The city marshal should be instructed to inquire into these matters; a fellow who has no visible means of support and no income, should be made to move. The work of petty stealing has just begun; in the summer these vagrants can live on less, and as crops are growing their thefts are not so noticeable, but when winter comes, and farmers have their crops garnered, the stealing is more apparent. A man who wants work can get it and at fair wages and a fellow who cannot work by reason of some disability should be cared for by the county, while a fellow who is able and will not work should be drummed out of town or put on the rock pile.

The remains were laid to rest Monday afternoon in Earlton cemetery.

Testing The Banking Law.
William May, former banker of St. Paul, Neosho county, is under $1,000 bond to stand trial for an alleged violation of the banking law passed by last winter's legislature. He was the active head of the State Bank of Osage Mission at St. Paul. Early last summer he said he did not like the new banking law, for it gave capital too little opportunity and placed too many restrictions on investment, and he threw up the charter of his bank and announced that he was going out of business.
Two months ago complaints began to reach the bank commissioner's office that checks on Wm. May & Co., were going the rounds of the banks, and evidence that May was doing a private banking business accumulated to such an extent that the bank commissioner decided to treat Wm. May & Co., as a private bank, and sent Deputy Waterman to examine their books. May denied that he was running a bank and refused to let Waterman see the books. If it be shown that May is really running a private bank he is liable to a fine or imprisonment unless he can break the new law. Under the law Bridenthal could do nothing but report the alleged violation to the county attorney. May has means, and should be convicted in the district court will probably take an appeal that will give the law a thorough test.—K. C. Star, 15, inst.
